As a retired university faculty member, Faye enjoys volunteering in church and community organizations that reflect her passion for equity/justice for women, children, and youth. She applies her administrative and organizational skills plus fiscal awareness to any project. Another priority for her is caring for our biological world.

For many years, she has been active in Cimarron District UMW/UWF in western Oklahoma and served as district president, reading coordinator, and communications coordinator. Guided by the example of her mother serving in Women's Society for Christian Service (WSCS), she held all the possible local unit offices and continues to serve her unit, district, and conference as needed. Currently, she is the Membership Chair for the Oklahoma Conference and on the Mission U Team serving as registrar. What a blessing it was to attend the UW Faith 2022 National Assembly in Orlando.

Faye's Bachelors in Medical Records Admin and Masters of Education in Biology from Southwestern Oklahoma State University has served her well in her professional career, faculty positions, and her own consulting business. As a faculty member at SWOSU, she was teaching students and directing the Health Information Management Program and Health Care Administration Program. Using her biology background, she also taught Microbiology Lab, Biology Concepts, and Principles of Biology labs. Each of these roles required communication and advanced computing skills plus using distance learning technology.

Now she enjoys volunteering for the Weatherford Environmental Group (WEG) to educate the public about recycling and organize recycling events across the state. Currently serves as president of the OK State American Association of University Women (AAUW), a board member for the SWOSU Wesley Foundation (campus ministry) and member of the First UMC Weatherford.

She always enjoys reading, cooking, gardening, singing in the choir and ringing bells. And Faye is busy taking care of her five cats and enjoys traveling to see family and all the wonders of our world.
